Who are Intermountain Therapy Animals?

We are a human service organization, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit, headquartered in Utah, that brings the gift of animal companionship and interaction to people in need. Our mission is to enhance quality of life through the human/animal bond. Our volunteers (people and their own pets) make regular visits to those who are physically or developmentally disabled, emotionally or psychologically impaired, lonely or suffering from depression. All services are free of charge to both client and facility.

ITA therapy animals and their handlers are screened, trained, licensed and insured to participate in animal-assisted interactions (AAI), which may be either animal-assisted activities (AAA) or animal-assisted therapy (AAT). Successful teams have completed both health and temperament screening and volunteer training.

Serving our communities since 1993, we are one of the largest groups of our kind in the United States, with more than 350 volunteer teams doing animal-assisted therapy at more than 100 hospitals, counseling centers, nursing facilities, detention homes, extended care centers, and schools. Chapters of ITA now thrive in Montana, Idaho, Nevada, and Kentucky.

We are also the founders of Reading Education Assistance Dogs® (R.E.A.D.®), a literacy support program to foster in children the love of books and the reading environment. R.E.A.D. has spread throughout the United States and beyond since we launched it in 1999.

If you would like more information about us and our work, please contact Executive Director Kathy Klotz at 801-272-3439. We welcome all who want to lend a helping paw! ♥

Intermountain Therapy Animals is proud to be one of the 21 Utah nonprofit organizations supported by Community Shares/Utah.
Therapy Animals Go To Camp (and other unexpected places)

Camp isn’t just for Scouts anymore. There are ever more kinds of camping experiences for people in all kinds of situations and, as we have learned with all our therapy services, whatever the campers’ goals or environments, adding therapy animals to the equation enhances the healthy prognosis even more.

Consider Morgan, the young lady on the cover of this issue. Getting a new prosthetic leg would be daunting at any age; going on a hike in the mountains with that new leg may be just too much to contemplate. But when a dog is encouraging you to try, it’s just enough inspiration to give it a go, to have fun, and to gain the confidence after accomplishing the feat.

What’s more, the latest research confirms our best instincts—that combining both animals and nature experiences together is a powerful antidote to depression, confusion, anger, ADD, and even too much time spent online. We all need to get outside!

Dear Friends,

I have now been volunteering with Intermountain Therapy Animals for more than a decade, and I can still say with great passion that nothing I have ever done has made such a dramatic and valuable difference in the everyday, real world challenges that people face, as animal-assisted therapies can and do.

People of all ages and socio-economic circumstances receive devastating diagnoses and injuries every day. Future paths must veer sharply, dreams are dashed, and all these events reverberate through a patient’s family as well.

Our animals come into these situations with great wisdom and intuition; they are catalysts, motivators, sources of fun and inspiration — and they pass no judgments. They make healing connections.

Animals the world over inspire these reactions, so work like ours may seem almost mundane or insignificant in the larger scheme of things. But nothing could be less true, because each encounter, one by one, is also unique and of singular benefit. Our therapists tell us over and over, year after year, that the animals inspire cooperation, participation and progress that they cannot otherwise get from their patients.

Now in our 19th year, ITA is one of the most successful organizations of our kind. But we are struggling, like other charities big and small, to keep providing these crucial services during these challenging economic times. We need your help to survive, to continue helping our patient/clients in over 100 healthcare facilities to heal. Please do all you can to make room for ITA on your budget and your heart. Investing in animal-assisted therapy is a guaranteed Return on Investment—it succeeds every time!

We hope we can count on your support. We need you now more than ever, so that we can continue to serve thousands of people in our community every year!

With sincere thanks,

Susan Daynes

We at INTERMOUNTAIN THERAPY ANIMALS are dedicated to enhancing quality of life through the human-animal bond. We call it "Pets Helping People," or animal-assisted therapy and, in the 18+ years we have been serving along the Wasatch Front, we have grown to be one of the largest groups of our kind in the world.

Our clients range from the elderly in care centers, to those of all ages facing rehabilitation after brain and spinal cord injuries, and of course to children, whether those suffering from abuse, accidents or disease, or those dealing with learning or developmental disabilities.

Consider Just One Healing Phenomenon: Laughter

We see it bloom and burst all the time, with our patient/clients of all ages, situations and diagnoses: the spontaneous, pleasurable, healthy, healing nature of smiles, laughter and fun. Norman Cousins first brought it to attention some 30 years ago when he was seeking healing for his own disease and wondered why hospitals don’t regularly issue comedies for their patients.

ITA therapy animals produce that happiness wherever they go.

Laughter, so rarely prescribed by any clinician, is surely the most therapeutic thing in the world. And now there are studies to prove it—something the drug companies must not be happy about, since laughter is free, can be administered by anybody, and has no negative side effects. (—Alexander McCall Smith)

Children in an oncology unit who spent an hour with a dog needed less pain medication for a full eight hours afterwards. (—Karen Allen, SUNY, 1998)

Happy 12th Anniversary, R.E.A.D.®!

As of this writing, ITA is celebrating the 12th anniversary of R.E.A.D. We’re keeping the partying low-key, but the glittering accomplishments of the program are anything but low-key!

- We now have more than 3,300 registered R.E.A.D. volunteer teams and 66 licensed R.E.A.D. Instructors
- We have R.E.A.D. affiliates in Canada, the UK, Ireland, Spain, Italy, Slovenia and elsewhere around the world
- The R.E.A.D. manual stands at 218 pages with content that is continually being updated, and an advanced R.E.A.D. skills manual and workshop, ”The Next Page,” has been developed and presented in several locations.
- We became a national educational outreach partner with the ”Martha Speaks” series on PBS.
- We are partners with The Kennel Club in Britain, which has started a foundation called ”Bark and Read” to support R.E.A.D.
- We received the stupendous Better World Books grant of $20,000.
- We held two regional conferences – 2010 in Minneapolis, Minnesota and 2011 in Atlanta, Georgia.
- Due to a dazzling bequest from the estate of Betty Keuffel, the three R.E.A.D. videos are now available to the world for free: the R.E.A.D. Team Training Video, R.E.A.D. at School, and R.E.A.D. at the Library
- We communicate regularly with our huge network of teams through an online forum and periodic Weekly R.E.A.D. newsletters
- We just received a donation of more than 700 new books, thanks to the U.S. Governors Association (see next page)

Even in our early excitement about the potential of R.E.A.D., we must admit to never imagining a truly international program that is helping children everywhere awaken to the joys and rewards of books and reading, as well as opening doors for them for success in the entire rest of their lives. Once again we thank Sandi Martin for her brilliant insight, and all of you out there for keeping it moving ever forward!

Utah’s First Lady Donates New Books to R.E.A.D.

The U.S. Governors Association held its conference in Salt Lake City in July of 2011. There were some leftovers when all was said and done, including some 700+ copies of a new children’s book, LaRue Across America, written by popular author Mark Teague.

Mrs. Jeanette Herbert, Utah’s First Lady, thought the books should go to schools. Lucky for us, one of our ITA team members is Don Gould, a Utah Highway Patrol officer, who heard about this matter because he was assigned to work the convention. (Read about Don and his partner, Toby, and the incredible way they found each other, on page 13.)

So Don lobbied Mrs. Herbert about the R.E.A.D. program, and convinced her that donating the new books to R.E.A.D. was the thing to do. (It is of course a dog story, which put the cherry on top!)

We at ITA were delighted to accept the books from Mrs. Herbert on October 26 at Copper Hills Elementary in Midvale, a Title I school where reading is a big challenge. Every one of the first graders was there for the presentation and received a copy; for most it was the very first book of their own.

Research tells us that receiving a brand new book is extremely significant for children who have never had books at home, far more valuable than getting used, hand-me-down copies. For that reason, giving new books as rewards for accomplishments has always been part of the R.E.A.D. program, and we have been lucky to receive wonderful donations to help us keep that practice going.

We also presented copies to the first graders at the McGillis School, and now are offering them to R.E.A.D. teams nationwide FREE (just shipping).

We are most grateful to Mrs. Herbert and the U.S. Governors; to Don Gould and Patrice Mealey of ITA for the very complicated task of arranging logistics between Copper Hills Elementary and Mrs. Herbert; and for all the staff at Copper Hills who helped the whole presentation event come off so beautifully despite so many people to accommodate.

Thanks also to writer Lisa Schencker at the Salt Lake Tribune for a lovely article, and Rick Egan for his endearing photos. Read online at www.sltrib.com to see all the photos in beautiful color (“For kids, dogs not just best friends, but study buddies,” Friday, October 28, 2011).

A Tribute to One of the Great R.E.A.D. Dogs

Robbie Roht - In Memorium

Robbie, partner of Cheryl Roht of Leawood, Kansas, was a R.E.A.D. dog extraordinaire whose pictures have conveyed the essence of the program and captivated people all around the world.

Robbie’s human, Cheryl, talks about what made him so great at his job:

“...the libraries he was friendly and loved listening to the children read, of course. It is hard, as all teams have experienced, to keep some parents at a distance so that the children can experience reading to the dog without anyone offering criticisms, pressure, etc. On one occasion, a father pulled up a chair and sat very close behind us, continuing a running commentary throughout the 15 minutes we worked with his child (in spite of my suggesting he move a bit back). When she was finished, the child went off to find another book and, since we didn’t have anyone offering criticisms, pressure, etc. On one occasion, a father pulled up a chair and sat very close behind us, continuing a running commentary throughout the 15 minutes we worked with his child (in spite of my suggesting he move a bit back). When she was finished, the child went off to find another book and, since we didn’t have anyone offering criticisms, pressure, etc.

So he sat himself down on the blanket next to Robbie and picked up a book. It was really funny because Robbie gave him

We did it—hosted our first ITA dog walk! Partnering with the University of Utah for their BE WELL UTAH week, we “Walked & Wagged for Wellness” on Saturday, September 10th, to introduce people of all ages to the joys of exercising with their dogs!

We watched 95 people and 64 dogs stroll our one-mile course through Fort Douglas, on the U of U campus, and welcomed them back to get their pictures taken with Clifford the Big Red Dog, and then received free Martha Speaks books and goody bags. A particular highlight was the live music from the “Free Range Chickens,” our favorite local musicians!

Our ITA teams, were everywhere—we were told over and over that the walkers especially enjoyed having them cheer everyone on at the 1/4, 1/2 and 3/4-mile markers!

As always, it takes lots of people to plan and execute a successful event, and we are grateful to everyone who helped, including Cindy Harris and the ITA staff.

The University personnel were enormously helpful and supportive, and we are hoping to be invited back next year.
Thank you! ITA is committed to promoting and enhancing the human-animal bond, but we could not do it without the generous donors who make all our accomplishments possible throughout 2011 and into the future.

Goodbye & Godspeed

a look, stood up, moved a foot or two away, and lay down with his back to the fellow, who observed correctly that Robbie obviously specialized in children and was taking a break! Robbie was great with seniors at assisted living—he just knew the difference between settings, and that this father was not his client.

“At school he always actively listened and looked at the pictures with the children. Every so often, he would put his paw on a page so the child would know that he needed an explanation. He was terrific in responding to subtle cues. One child that had no trouble reading, his problem was comprehension, so one day we were reading one of the "I Spy" books. He would read the word, see the picture and on the next page try to quickly find the item among dozens of other images. We were not doing very well and the boy was distracted and not focused. So on the next page, after a minute or so I said, "I bet Robbie can find that ball!" Sure enough, his paw slapped that page right on the ball (luck?!) The boy looked at Robbie in disbelief. On the next page, it was an airplane, and oops! Robbie did it again. On the next page the boy found the train, and next he found the blocks. At the end I asked him what he thought and he turned to me and said triumphantly, "I bet Robbie!"

"Rob’s favorite was the Cheerios book because the children would fill in the tires, buttons etc. with the cereal and then he got to eat when they said "OK, Robbie." If no one else was around to be distracted, Robbie loved to count (bark) the number of Cheerios the child needed to fill in the blanks. He was asked to demonstrate this talent at the staff and volunteer appreciation lunch; they also wanted to see him demonstrate tapping the page.”

Our heartfelt thanks to Cheryl & Robbie for making a world of difference to so many children.

[Unknown] — June 14, 2011

If there can be a "Renaissance Dog" in terms of therapy work, Hook was surely it, due to the length, breadth, depth and variety of his work and his influence.

Among the many hallmarks in Hook’s life:

- He was one of the original R.E.A.D. dogs who started our monumental program in 1999; he continued at the SL Main Library and three other libraries for many years.
- He went with Anita to more than 17 ITA programs and facilities, covering the entire range of activities and therapies.
- He has starred in many of our film productions, including the early PSAs done for us by Questar, the R.E.A.D. team training (Continued on page next page) and the “AAT in Rehabilitation” videos.

Hook — In Memoriam

• Hook joined ITA’s Hall of Fame with Anita in 2001, and was named ITA Therapy Animal of the year in 2009 to honor his long and varied service.

• He is still the only ITA dog to have gone to work all by himself. One night, Anita chose to take Riggins, her therapy cat, instead of Hook, to their regular Thursday appointment at HealthSouth. Hook escaped the back yard, leaving home to cross 13th East (a solid black dog after dark) to get to HealthSouth, where he trotted through the front doors and went straight down the hall to find Anita and his patients.

• Anita says, ”Hook loved volunteering. He would go anywhere and do anything requested of him. He knew when I put on my red shirt that good times were coming. He would head out to the car before I could get there. And he knew what it meant to volunteer. He knew what to do for each patient—and he knew when it was time to work—though it was never actually work for him.

“Hook found or created joy in everything he tried and did—no matter what it was.”

Dear Friend,

It is my time to say goodbye. My legs are weakening, my sight failing, smells are faint. I am wearying. My spirit is fading, and I have been called home and away from you.

I wish to be strong again, to roll in gross stuff, to snatch greasy bones, to eat all of the things you hated me to eat, to have my belly scratched for all time, to run through the fields and the woods, to smell the stories of life, and to raise my nose to the wind and see the world all over again.

I am going home. I know I leave you in loneliness and pain. That is the way of people when they say goodbye. Dogs are different. We don’t have regrets or wish that we could alter the story of life.

Although I have been called away, I leave you with the memories of our life together.

I remember a cold winter’s night when you sang to me in the dark as the wind howled and snow drifted outside the window. I felt your loneliness and knew my work.

When you looked at me and the corners of your mouth turned up, you smelled and looked different. Lighter, happier. That was my life, my work. Nothing more clearly defined my purpose. When you smiled, I knew why I was here.

I never tired of watching you, of being with you while you lived your life. I sat by your side, entering into the spirit of the moment. I supported your life, wherever it went, whatever you felt, whatever you did. I was your witness, your testament.

I remember walking in the snow. And running alongside you. And chasing after balls, Frisbees, sticks. And warm fires on cold nights. And sitting by you when you read books or watched baseball games.

I remember my heart jumping out of my chest when you came home and called my name, or grabbed a ball, or took me outside, or fed me. I hope you know that I loved all of those things—whatever you chose to bring me and give me, whatever time you spent with me, I loved.

And I thank you.

I always knew where you were, even when you forgot me or couldn’t see me. You had no secrets from me. You showed me everything. We trusted each other.

Unlike people, I would never hurt you. I could never hurt you. It is not an instinct I possess.

I smelled and felt all of the worries in a human life, but I am different. Like other animals, I want only what I need. Your life is too complex for me to grasp. There are so many things in it that are meaningless to me.

I am so much simpler than you.

I love you and I love all the people and animals in our home. And I love food and smelly things in the woods and balls and Frisbees and bones. There is not much more to me than that, and yet you loved me for it, and despite it.

By now, you must know that there is always a goodbye hovering in the shadow of a dog. We are never here for long, or for long enough. We were never meant to share all of your life, only to mark its passages. We come and we go. We come when we are needed. We leave then it is time. Death is necessary. It defines life.

I will see you again.

I will watch over you.

I hope, in your grief and loneliness, that you will consider how sad it would have been had we not had this time together, not had the chance to give each other so much.

I do not mourn or grieve, but I will miss standing beside you, bound together on our walk through life, even as I know that there is a long line of others waiting to take my place and stand with you.

Thank you. It was nothing but a gift.

And finally, I ask these things of you:

Remember me.

Celebrate me.

Grieve for me.

And then, when you can, let me go, freely and in peace.

When you are ready, do me the great honor of bringing another dog into your life, so you can give and receive this gift again. ♥

The Toby Chronicles
Don Gould & Toby

I know that people/pet relationships vary on many levels. I can identify with that, since I had a few pets when growing up—fish, a parakeet, and a hamster. My family eventually graduated to an indoor cat who lived to be 20 years old. We all loved her very much, but from the time I moved out I was not sure if I needed or even wanted a pet; I thought I was quite content on my own.

Many pet owners say that their pet chose them and not vice-versa, and I definitely fit into this category. I was a newly-assigned sergeant with the Utah Highway Patrol, stationed in Wendover. I had just moved there and begun a new chapter in my life on the first of July 2007. On the 4th of July, I was working the day shift, after helping out with the town parade, when a call came across the radio that there was a reckless semi truck driving eastbound several miles out of Wendover. The driver was weaving all over the road and had actually run off several times before making it back into his lane. I responded to the call, started eastbound from Wendover and caught up to the semi.

It was true; the semi was all over the road. I had been on the UHP for over ten years and had seen this driving pattern many times, but never from a semi. When I got the semi stopped, I had driver get out of the truck and walk to the back of his trailer. He staggered as he walked and slurred his speech. After the field sobriety tests, I arrested the driver for DUI. By now, another UHP officer had arrived on the scene to assist me. My colleague walked towards me and began to laugh. “There is a dog in there,” he said, chuckling.

Immediately, I began to think of how much hassle this was going to be. Standard protocol is to call animal control; they respond and hold the animal until the owner can claim it. But we were 70 miles from town on a holiday weekend. Next I began thinking how to convince the other officer to transport the dog to town. “Is he friendly?” I asked. Still laughing, he said he was.

As I climbed in to the semi cab, the first thing that I saw was a large ice chest between the front seats. Most of the ice had melted and several unopened cans of beer were bobbing around in the water. Empty beer cans littered the floor. I peeked into the sleeper berth behind the seats, and that is when I saw him …

A skinny, tri-color border collie peered up at me with big, friendly eyes, just waiting for someone to say hi. I greeted him with a welcomed scratch on the head and reassuring words. Looking around, I saw a bowl on the floor and an unopened package of hot dogs floating in the water. I thought to myself that this dog probably did not get the most healthy diet. I told him to stay and climbed back out of the semi. The other officer and I agreed that the dog was mellow enough, so I would take both him and his owner to town. I went to my car and started to make room in the front seat for my new passenger. I asked his owner what the dog’s name was and he told me it was Toby. “Is he a good dog?” I asked. “He won’t give you any problems,” was all he replied.

I returned to the semi to see my co-worker laughing again. Toby had apparently jumped out of the passenger-side window and had to be coerced back into the truck. I opened the door, called his name and he climbed from the sleeper berth to the front seat and just looked at me. I told him to jump out, which he was more than happy to do. Once on the ground, he just hung around us like one of the guys. I grabbed his collar and escorted him to my car. He hopped into the front seat and lay right down.

During our drive to town, his owner was crying about losing his “cow dog.” Toby paid no attention to the person blubbering in the back seat and instead seemed to be enjoying the air conditioning. He then sprawled out as much as possible on the front seat and gently laid his head across the center radio console and just looked at me with those big brown eyes. I already knew that he was a good dog, but at that moment I could tell that he was a very special dog.

At the jail, I took Toby into the dispatch center to be watched while I took care of business. After the driver was booked into jail, I returned to the dispatch center to find Toby being smothered with attention from all of the dispatchers. He was obviously enjoying Cara, our 3-year-old Labrador/Golden Retriever cross, is our ITA partner. We live in Pleasant View, Utah, just north of Ogden, and regularly take Cara to the McKay-Dee Hospital, the McKay-Dee Behavioral Health Institute, and the Emeritus Estates senior living center. She also helps out with special events at Weber State University from time to time.

Bred by Canine Companions for Independence to be a service dog, Cara is very familiar with WSU. She used to attend concerts there while she was a service pup in training. Cara decided on a change of career (in other words, she did not entirely meet CCI’s rigorous standards), and she has been working as a therapy dog for almost two years now. ITA handlers up north who do not recognize her name probably can recall her by her characteristic leaping enthusiastically 4 feet straight into the air at ITA gatherings as she approaches the other dogs for the first time. Fortunately, she demurs from displaying such conduct during her visits with clients. At least, she seems willing to show some restraint provided that she still gets to enthusiastically greet any other ITA dogs outside first!

There probably is not a moving story we could tell you about Cara that you have not already heard in some other guise. That is the great thing about ITA’s therapy work—each team’s great experiences are both universal and unique. One of our favorites occurred at the hospital. A patient who was bedridden with serious depression remarked to a staff person, just after a visit with Cara, “I think I will get out of bed, because I now realize there is so much to live for.” That’s the quintessential joy that our clients receive from the dogs.

Cara has the company at home of a 15-month-old CCI puppy, the fifth puppy we have raised for CCI, and a 13-year-old Australian Shepherd. We are really enjoying our volunteering for ITA, providing valuable canine companionship to people in need at no cost to them. What a wonderful gift!

On June 3rd, 25 Utah nonprofits were treated to lunch by the people at SelectHealth, and each organization was awarded a $2,500 grant. ITA is proud to be one of those Select25! They made gorgeous 7’ tall banners for each of us, as well, which we got to keep after they spent some time this summer in the Intermountain Health Care facilities. Thanks, Select Health!
Dog with two broken legs finds owner after storm

A scruffy Alabama terrier mix named Mason was whisked away by fierce twisters last month, prompting his owners, who lost their home in the storm, to fear the worst. But the redoubtable mutt apparently crawled back to his home days later with two broken legs in a remarkable tale of survival.

Local news outlet WBRC reports that Mason was blown away by the storm from the garage in Birmingham where he was hiding on April 27. His owners looked for him everywhere but couldn’t find him. Two and a half weeks later, though, they found Mason waiting for them on their front porch when they returned to the house to look through the debris.

Workers at the Birmingham Jefferson County Animal Control shelter are now caring for Mason, since his owners say they can’t take care of him while they piece their lives back together after the storm. “This is probably the most dramatic we’ve seen as far as an injury in an animal that’s survived this long. It’s kind of tapering off, the amount of animals we’re seeing because of the storm. For an animal just to show up on someone’s porch after this time was pretty remarkable, especially with the condition he’s in,” shelter worker Phil Doster told the news station.

Mason is “doing fantastic” after his May 20 surgery where metal plates were attached to his bones so they could heal, Doster told The Lookout in an email. “We are excited that he will be going back to his family and to the home where he finally returned after 3 weeks,” he wrote. Mason is expected to be able to walk completely normally after he recovers in about six weeks, though his front legs will be a bit shorter than his back legs. Mason’s family has requested to not be named in the media, Doster added, but they are “very excited” for Mason to come home when their house is again habitable in about five weeks.

Pets are often forgotten victims of natural disasters such as the fierce storms and tornadoes that have battered the Midwest the past few months. The Human Society of the United States has sent rescue teams to find pets in Joplin, Missouri, Tuscaloosa, Alabama, and other hard-hit areas.

Dear ITA,
We are fighting with our insurance over some behavioral health services [our daughter] received during her first hospital stay last year. While well-intentioned, these services didn’t benefit her much. What really changed her attitude and demeanor were her visits from the therapy dogs, especially Elliot.
What a blessing you were to us during our stays there!
We appreciate you so much and all you do. We pray for YOUR good health and blessings to you.
And our whole family loves that we can still follow you and see what Elliot and Joe have been up to lately on FB.
A grateful mom,
JoAnne Christensen

Dear Friends at ITA,
Thanks to Intermountain Therapy Animals, the Big Sky Kids Program continues to bring hope and respite to families with a child battling cancer. We deeply appreciate your gift of bringing animals to spend time and hike with our campers for Camp Braveheart. You and your dogs are simply amazing!! We absolutely love having you with our families at camp.
Camp Braveheart is truly a magical place for everyone involved, and you have helped make it possible. From Eagle Mount’s Board, staff, volunteers and participants—thank you!
With sincere gratitude,

Dear ITA,
Thank you! My Connor, age 15, was at Primary Children’s Hospital in June. The highlight was Elliot. What a sweet dog and kind handler! Having the dog was so helpful. Connor asked me to wake him up if the dog came by.
Wish there were dogs every day. It would certainly brighten up everyone’s day, including parents.
Please accept our check for some extra dog treats!
Thanks again! We love Elliot!

Dear ITA,
I wanted to take this opportunity to express our heartfelt and sincere gratitude for the time Peggy Chudd & George spent with us at our learning day, Joy of the Book. Not only did they create a very meaningful lesson for our students, but your gift of the books was wonderful. Also, great article in the [Salt Lake] Tribune!
Thank you so much for putting what you believe into actions. What you and your teams do makes a huge impact upon our world. Thanks!
Sincerely,

Dear Susan,
It was so good to meet you and Diva a couple of days ago! Your timing was impeccable! Savannah had had six seizures, all about 5 to 7 minutes apart. As soon as Diva came into the room, the seizures stopped and she didn’t have any more the rest of the day.
The seizures that Savannah is having are non-epileptic, but have been very frightening for her and very painful.
You and Diva brought joy into our lives, and Savannah continues to talk about the wonderful experience she had.
Attached are photos we took while Diva was with Savannah.
Thanks again!
Love and hugs.

herself, but when I walked in, his eyes seemed to light up a little bit more. Now I had to take Toby to one of the local veterinarians who boards animals until their owners get out of jail. I knew this would be hard.

Toby hopped into the car—the front seat, of course—and we started to the vet. As soon as we turned into the parking lot, I could see fear mounting in Toby. My heart sank. I dreaded leaving him there. Other dogs were barking uncontrollably. It was a hectic atmosphere. I pulled up to the outdoor kennel area and opened the passenger door. Toby did not want to get out; he just sat there looking at me. He finally, begrudgingly, climbed out but stuck to my side. At the empty cage, I told Toby to get inside. He refused. I asked several times, to no avail. Finally, I went inside the kennel myself and coaxed Toby inside. I felt terrible about having to use deceit on such a loving dog. I scooted out and shut the door behind me. When I looked back I saw a sad, scared dog looking back at me with betrayal in his eyes. I told him he would be fine and out in a few days, but as I drove away I could not bear to look back at Toby sitting scared and alone.

Six days later, on July 11th, I received a phone call from the vet. Toby was still there—what was the status of his owner? Was he going to pick up Toby? I was amazed and could not understand why his owner had not picked him up. I called the jail and was told that the driver had bailed out the day after his arrest. I called his phone number, and after a brief conversation, he told me that he was at a point in his life where he could not take care of a dog. He said his “cow dog” needed to go to a good home. I called the vet and relayed this message. “Do you know of anyone who would take the dog?” he asked. I said I didn’t, but he assured me he would be able to find him a home.

A switch flipped in my head. I had never had a dog in my life, but I knew this dog was special. I told the vet that I would come pick him up that afternoon. The next several hours consisted of calling a trusted friend about brands of dog food as well as dogs’ needs. I made trips to local stores for food, bowls, leash and a collar, and then drove to the vet’s office.

I paid the boarding fee and then out came Toby, being led by a vet assistant. He was mellow and obedient and the staff had clearly taken a liking to him. When he saw me, he got excited. His eyes lit up and I knew he had already forgiven me for leaving him there. One rabies shot later, we were walking out the door, Toby not leaving my side and doing exactly what I wanted him to do before I even told him.

I drove to our local UHP office and took Toby inside to show him off. I told our secretary Toby’s story and that I was trying to find him a good home. Without missing a beat she said, “He’s already found a good home.” I guess my eyes said it all. Without knowing it, I had already decided to keep Toby and she knew it. She told me that I needed a dog and Toby and I were perfect for each other. Not wanting to admit I was now a dog owner, I told her that I would think about it. But as we left the office, I knew it was final. I was going to keep Toby. As he looked at me from the passenger seat while we drove back to Wendover, I could see in his eyes that he had already chosen me. We were both starting a new chapter in life.

In the following months we learned a lot together. As you can guess, as a first-time dog owner with the smartest dog in the world, it was a steep learning curve for me. We spent tons of time together chasing rabbits and lizards in the desert and made the rounds to various city offices to visit with all the staff. Toby quickly became a very popular dog.

Toby has so much love to give that I knew I could probably share his specialness with others. I researched the options for volunteering and found ITA. We became an ITA team in May of 2009. It has been two years since we joined ITA and still, on every visit we do, I can see in Toby’s eyes the love he offers to everyone he comes in contact with.

Each of our 350 ITA therapy teams is absolutely unique, since all the people and animals bring to their volunteer practice an endless kaleidoscope of ages, sizes, breeds, backgrounds and talents.

What about you and your companion animal? If you think you both might enjoy volunteering with ITA, providing animal-assisted therapies at one of the more than 100 facilities we visit, call ITA to learn more: 801.272.3439
